TAKING TOLL.

In the door of the mill stood Richard Lee; White as an image of spow was he, From his heavy boots to his beautiful lips, From the crown of his hat to his finger-tips Now, alowly jogging along the street, Drove farmer Brown, with his grist of wheat And with him Bessie, as fresh as the spring, And ripe as the fruits the fall months bring. While the farmer drove about the town, Young Lee ground the wheat and bolted it do With many a glance at the maiden fair, Who sat by the door in the oaken chair.

At last be called her in shouting tones, And she stood by the whirling, rambling stones, And watched the grain as it clude so still. Till the farmer came, but the noise of the mill Drowned the sound of his feet, and over the hepp Two heads were bent, and when Richard Lee Saw him standing there he stammered, "J—see Cav in a statemy that is the feet, "I take the same are weed in your wheat". But the farmer sulled and said, "Well, Ress, Of the two evils always choose the less."

And the malden looked down confused and me With a patch of flour on one cheek! Still the old man didn't take it ill, For he knew young Richard owned the mill. But he mused, *s they slowly rede away; "Well: I've been to kill now many a day-Say forty odd years—but, bless my soul! That chap beats all of them taking toll."

The Pinafore costume is the very latest of many pretty caprices, Over the dark brown satteen underskirt is worn a marvelously coquettish gray satteen polonaise, all covered with the gayest of posies and wandering vines. The waist iscutheart-shape, and for the neck is a distracting little kerchief of finest swiss, all fluffy with Breton lace. Quantities of ribbon bows, involving all the colors contained in the polonaise, are dotted about among the folds of drapery, on the bosom, the pockets, and wherever a bow can be placed. Among the new goods are jardiniere satteens, jardiniere twilled cretonnes, momie cloths with little boquets printed upon them, and Pompadour lawnsand organdies.

While the variety in bonnets is infinite, which is confisced with corrected the polonaise of them, and Pompadour lawnsand organdies.

While the variety in bonnets is infinite, teens, jardiniere twilled cretonnes, momie cloths with little boquets printed upon them, and Pompadour lawasand organdies, then there are dark blue linens, piped, when made up, with red or amber, and jardiniere linens, whereon lovely flowers, painted as with an artist's brush, and vines wander. All of them may be worn as either hat or bonnet. Still later comes the Directoire, which strong distingtion and the favorites, rivalled by the Carmen, which may be worn as either hat or bonnet. The back of the skirt is draped, forming two full pufis, and a falling mass of drapery has revers of red silk and cascades of lace. As the season progresses panters will be evidences left of the natural figure. Hoops are mysteriously hinted at; there is a sly moyement toward patches, and the enormous bonnet of 1830 is threatened—also the tunnel-shaped sooop which some one said was worn when maidans hid their bulses and discarded when blushing became unfashionable. In dress restraints must be borne, but touching bonnets nothing is imposed. Their variety is indefinite and their name legion. One consequence of the present caprice is that flowers have to be renewed almost as often as gloves. Nature will be followed as she gives us the first snow-drop and violet on through the regular routine until the blooming of the asters and chrysanthemums. She insists upon the details as persistently as the German dramatist who noted in his play. "Here is to be heard the sound of a red coat brushing." And so the new fashions seem inclined to slide gradually and gracefully into the "teacup time of hoop and hood," with quaintly costumed Chloe and Dors. Changeable silk is revived from oblivion and called shot silk. This is used in combination with striped satins, along the pretitest effects are olive and gold, blue and gold blue and

The changeable silk front has three breadths covered with ruffles, and the three trained back breadths are composed of the striped satin-edged with knife-plaiting, headed by a frayed bias ruching. The vest is also made of the striped satin, while the side forms of the polonaise are of the silk, and are carelessly draped in curves back over the hips, where they are attached to the striped satin with iong looped bows of ribbon. Some French dresses shown at a private exposition are marvels of elaboration and artistic skill in color and design. A black velvet and brocaded stripe grenadine has the draping of the long skirt arranged in a plaited scarf trimmed with jet ambroidered lace; there is a full plaiting of black lace on the front breadth, held in place by a wide band of jet. The basque is cut high with elbow sleeves and trimmed with jet lace. Some marficent Pompadour grenadines are brocaded. "th flowers in their natural colors. SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE

CATARRH SNEEZE: SNEEZE!

Until your head seems ready to fly off, until your head seems ready to fly off, until your nose and eyes discharge excessive quantities of nucus, thin, acrid and poisonous, until unft for business or pleasure you number yourself among the most afficited of mortals, destined to suffer periodically the greatest distress without relief or consolation. Every draught, every breath of air seems an enemy in disguise. This is Acute Catarrh or Cold in the Head. It arises from constitutionally weak or diseased masal organs and enfeebled action of the pores of the skin. In the permanent cure of this distressing trouble, Sanford's Radical Core is a never indiling specific. Instant relief follows the first dose. It is use destroys that morbid zensitiveness to atmospheric changes which predisposes people to this disease, and is sure to prevent an attack of Chronic or Ulcerative SNEEZE!
